Market Commentary

The strength seen in equity and credit markets through most of the summer softened slightly as we moved into August, with 10-year Treasury yields rising rapidly in the opening of the month. This was as the US Treasury announced a schedule of greater-than-expected supply, the country was surprisingly downgraded by Fitch (AAA to AA+), and the ADP payroll number came in significantly above expectations. A lower-than-expected nonfarm payroll print on the first Friday of the month, however, provided some relief, although the 10-year Treasury yield still ended the week 13 basis points (bps) higher at 4.08%.

The steady drip higher in rates continued in the second week of August as the 'soft landing' narrative started to take hold and central bank commentary remained hawkish – particularly from the Fed's Mary Daly – although the US inflation print on the Thursday continued to show a positive trend (headline CPI came in at 3.2% year-on-year versus 3.3% expected), which will be key to determining whether the Fed will hike again in September (the market currently views this as unlikely).

A topic that had been building for a number of months continued to dent sentiment in August, with data out of China showing the weakest exports since February of 2020, alongside some major companies in the real estate sector falling closer to bankruptcy. Emergency steps taken by the People's Bank of China (PBOC) were unable to turn things around, and so economists further downgraded their expectations for Chinese growth in 2023, a trend that could have a significant influence on global growth given China's size.

Contrary to the weaker data in China, however, we saw continued strength in US data through the middle of the month, with retail sales, initial jobless and manufacturing surveys all coming in stronger than expected, leading economists to increase their expectations for third-quarter US GDP (the Atlanta Fed at one point was predicting an extraordinary third-quarter GDP growth estimate of 5.8% annualised).

Stronger growth expectations led some investors to talk of the Fed having to go further than anticipated in terms of base rates, and with that 10-year Treasury yields peaked above their post financial crisis highs, reaching 4.36% intraday on 22 August, before falling into month end, amid weaker growth data out of Europe and a Jackson Hole speech from Jerome Powell that was less hawkish than some were expecting.

Total returns in financial markets in August were generally weaker than in prior months, with equity markets posting negative returns (-1.6% in the US, -2.5% in Europe) in addition to government bond markets (-0.6% for US Treasuries, -0.6% for UK Gilts, although Europe defied this trend, posting returns of +0.3%). Credit markets held up better, with high yield again outperforming, particularly in the US and the UK, where high yield outperformed investment grade (IG) by 100bps and 40bps respectively, returning 0.2% and 0.3%.

Portfolio Commentary

The portfolio managers continue to look for relative value opportunities within the credit market. In August the team did some extension trades within the AT1 sector (Intesa and Virgin Media), allowing the fund to lock-in higher purchase yield bonds for longer.

Credit reported mixed performance, with HY index returns of anywhere between 0.1 and 0.3% in the month but IG index returns of between -0.8% and 0.1%, depending on the currency. The Fund returned approximately 0.80% on the month, with strong performance from HY and ABS offset by weaker performance in the AT1 sector.

Market Outlook and Strategy

Central banks will remain highly data dependent in the coming months as they near the end of their hiking cycles, with key focus on inflation and labour market data for signs of whether economies will avert a recession.

The portfolio managers continue to view credit as an attractive asset class due to high all-in yields and low default rates, with a continued preference for subordinated financials and ABS given strong fundamental tailwinds combined with elevated yields.
